Der Verein der Mittelalterlichen Chronik

Der Verein der Mittelalterlichen Chronik (The Medieval Chronical Society, MCS) wurde während der zweiten internationalen Konferenz über die Mittelalterliche Chronik, die im niederländischen Driebergen stattfand, gegründet. Es ist eine internationale und interdisziplinäre Organisation, die gegründet wurde, um die Arbeit von an mittelalterlichen Chroniken oder allgemeiner an mittelalterlichen Historiographien interessierten Wissenschaftlern zu fördern.

Die Geschichte des Vereins begann mit einer Reihe von Treffen, die alle drei Jahre zuerst in Utrecht, später aber an wechselnden Orten stattfand. Diese frühen Konferenzen wurden von Erik Kooper (Englisches Seminar, Utrecht) veranstaltet. Während der zweiten Konferenz 1999 wurde der Verein formell gegründet.

Bisherige Konferenzen:

1996 Utrecht (Driebergen) – 1999 Utrecht (Driebergen) – 2002 Utrecht (Doorn)

2005 Reading – 2008 Belfast

Mitgliedschaft

Der Verein der Mittelalterlichen Chronik ist ein virtueller Verein, das heißt, dass er keine formelle Organisation besitzt. Jeder, der an dem Studium der Mittelalterlichen Chronik interessiert ist, kommt als Mitglied in Frage. Sobald ein Name der MCS Mailing-Liste zugefügt wird, ist man Mitglied. Es werden keine Gebühren erhoben.

Am Ende jeder dreijährlichen Konferenz wird ein General Meeting gehalten und da alle Konferenzteilnehmer auf der MCS Mailing-Liste stehen, haben sie auch das Recht, an den Diskussionen und Beschlüssen teilzunehmen.

General Meeting – Belfast 2008

As usual a General Meeting concluded the 5th International Conference in Belfast, July 2008, organized by Dion Smythe.

Election new officers

The most important point on the agenda (apart from the venue of the next conference) was the election of two members to succeed Erik Kooper in two of his functions.

In the first place Graeme Dunphy (Regensburg, Germany) was elected as the new President of the MCS as per immediate.

After that Sjoerd Levelt (Warburg Institute, London) was elected to act as assistant-editor of The Medieval Chronicle volumes, for vol. VIII, and to become chief editor with vol. IX.

6th International Conference on the Medieval Chronicle 2011 – Pécs, Hungary

At the same Genral Meeting in Belfast it was decided that the 6th International Conference on the Medieval Chronicle will be held at the University of Pécs, Hungary, in the summer of 2011. The organizing committee will consist of Mártha Font and Dániel Bagi, both of the History Department.

Their e-mail addresses are:

THE MEDIEVAL CHRONICLE

The Medieval Chronicle VI

Work on vol. VI has reached its final stages; publication is expected later this year. It will contain papers by keynote speakers and other participants at three different conferences, as well as papers submitted by members of the MCS.

The Medieval Chronicle VII

In July of 2008 a small international symposium on the Medieval Chronicle was held in Cambridge. Papers from that gathering will form the core of vol. VII, which will in its entirety be dedicated to chronicles written in England, and include papers on texts in Latin, French/Anglo-Norman and English. There is still space for one or two contributions on chronicles in one of the Celtic languages. Guest editor of the volume will be Dr Juliana Dresvina, one of the organizers.

The possibility of a thematic volume offered itself unexpectedly, but was welcomed by the editorial board. Members are invited to submit proposals for similar thematic volumes.

The Medieval Chronicle VIII – Call for contributions

Although much of the space of vol. VIII will undoubtedly go to papers read at the conference in Pécs in 2011, members are reminded that they can always submit papers independent of conference activities.

Website

Within the next few months, the Medieval Chronicle Society will have its own website. Dr Godfried Croenen and Dr Sarah Peverley of the University of Liverpool have registered the domain name 'medievalchronicle.org' and the site is currently being designed. The website will allow society members to find information about past and future conferences, current international research being done on chronicles, and other important news. Members will be contacted once the website is up and running.

Encyclopedia of the Medieval Chronicle

A number of interdisciplinary projects have been inspired by the society. One of these is Graeme Dunphy's Encyclopedia of the Medieval Chronicle, due to appear with Brill (Leiden) in 2009, and to which many members of the MCS are contributing items. For some areas, especially Italy, Byzantium, the Islamic world, and Latin works from throughout the Empire, a few additional contributors would be very welcome. Beside this there are still a few free items in other areas as well (English, French, Spanish and Celtic languages). If you feel like helping out, or know someone who might, please contact Graeme Dunphy at: g@dunphy.de.

Conferences – 2010

Medieval Chronicle Society at Leeds – July 2010

The Medieval Chronicle Society is sponsoring two sessions at the 17th International Medieval Congress in Leeds, 12-15 July 2010:

Session one: Travel and Exploration in Medieval Chronicles

Abstracts are invited for papers dealing with descriptions of travel, exploration, migration and/or conquest in medieval chronicles, and with relations between chronicles and travel accounts in other texts. We particularly welcome papers with either interdisciplinary or cross-cultural approaches, and papers that reach beyond the conventional chronological and geographical borders of the European Middle Ages.

Session two: The Medieval Chronicle

Abstracts are invited for papers dealing with any aspect of medieval chronicles. We particularly welcome papers addressing one or more of the themes of the Medieval Chronicle Society. We particularly, but by no means exclusively, welcome papers with interdisciplinary and/or diachronic approaches, and papers relating to chronicles from regions other than Western Europe.

Please send proposals for twenty-minute papers in English, French or German (title and an abstract of about 250-300 words, with a short bibliography) by e-mail to Sjoerd Levelt (s.levelt@seh.oxon.org) by September 6, 2009. Inquiries are welcome.

New Publications – Neue Bücher

Broken Lines: Genealogical Literature in Medieval Britain and France

Ed. Raluca L. Radulescu and Edward Donald Kennedy. Turnhout: Brepols, 2008. 295 pp. ISBN 978-2-503-52485-6. Approx. € 80.

Geschichte der Sächsischen Franziskanerprovinz von den Anfängen bis zum Ende des 20. Jahrhunderts

1. Band (Mittelalter), hrsg. Volker Honemann, mit einem Beitrag von ihm: 'Mittelalterliche Geschichtsschreibung der Saxonía'; im einzelnen werden v. a. Alexander Minorita, Albert von Stade, die Sächsische Weltchronik, Jordan von Giano, Detmar von Lübeck, die Erfurter Franziskanerchronik sowie zahlreiche weitere Werke (z. B. Konventschroniken) behandelt. Erscheint im Verlag Schöningh/Paderborn, ca. 2010.

Commemorating Violence: The Writing of History in the Francophone Middle Ages

Zrinka Stahuljak (Assoc. Professor of French, UCLA) and Noah Guynn (Assoc. Professor of French, UC Davis) have obtained a contract to publish a volume of essays entitled Commemorating Violence: The Writing of History in the Francophone Middle Ages in the Gallica Series at Boydell & Brewer. The volume is slated to appear in 2012.

The overarching goals of the volume will be, first, to contribute to ongoing efforts to integrate medieval history writing more fully into the fold of literary studies; and, second, to discern properly medieval conceptions of historicity, as distinct from modern notions of factual accuracy. The volume will explore the methodologies, epistemologies, and ideologies of medieval Francophone historiography by concentrating specifically on the commemoration of violent acts and events. For more information, bulletin readers should contact ndguynn@ucdavis.edu or zs@humnet.ucla.edu.

Mosaics of Time: The Latin Chronicle Tradition from its Beginnings to the Sixth Century

This multi-volume work will provide a comprehensive history of the chronicle and related-genres in Latin, setting them in their wider Mediterranean context. After the first, historical volume – to appear within the year – further volumes will include texts, translations and extensive commentary on that tradition. In cases where an adequate textus receptus exists, we will print that, but in most instances we are producing new editions. For more information contact the editors, Richard Burgess or Michael Kulikowski: rburgess@uottawa.ca – mkulikow@utk.edu.

Manuscript Exhibition – 2011

Imagining the Past in France, 1250-1500 (16. November, 2010 - 6. Februar, 2011)

J. Paul Getty Museum – Los Angeles, CA – USA – <http://www.getty.edu/>

'Imagining the Past in France' wird die Visualisierung von Geschichte in Frankreich zwischen etwa 1250 und 1500 in den Blick nehmen und dafür einige der herausragendsten Meisterwerke des Mittelalters versammeln. In der Ausstellung wird die Bebilderung volkssprachiger Handschriften als ein Weg interpretiert, ein mittelalterliches Geschichtskonzept zu formen und zu verbreiten, das - im Rückblick auf die Vergangenheit - einer ganzen Nation die Grundlage für das Verständnis der Gegenwart und für die Planung der Zukunft vermitteln sollte. In Ergänzung zu ungefähr 60 Handschriften wird eine kleine Auswahl mittelalterlicher Kunstgegenstände wie Tapisserien und Elfenbeinarbeiten zu sehen sein.

Die Ausstellung wird kuratiert von Dr. Elizabeth Morrison (J. Paul Getty Museum, Department of Manuscripts) in Zusammenarbeit mit Prof. Dr. Anne D. Hedeman (University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, School of Art and Design).
